Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX King Feature Syndicate,

Still Remembers Old Love Dear Miss Fairfax:

Several years ago I became engaged to a young man. We argued a lot and finally parted. I had many dates, but took none seriously. In the meantime I saw this first man on the average of once a week, but we were just friendly.

Lately I have found that I love him after all these years. I am now 29 years old. He has changed and instead of making love, laughs at me. We have been seeing each other quite regularly, but he says nothing about love. I asked him if he still loves me and he said "Yes,

Do you think he is serious? If he is not I want to break off and not see him any more, as I think he just wants a girl friend He went with one girl and let her down. What shall I do? Shall I ask him where I stand and ask for the return of my ring, or what?

If you don't let your emotions run away with you and become too depressed by this young man's change of tempo, you might have a delightful friendship with which, as romantic people might "ripen into love.

But having broken with him once very likely he doesn't want to court a second fiasco. Your best bet is go along with him in a pleasant friendship and be as wary as he is

I wanted to give her up because I thought we argued too much, but she asked me to forgive her and we still go together. Do you think I should stop or go on with this girl?

As this young girl of whom you write me is still in high school and her mother objects to your constant calling, why don't you see her on Friday or Saturday evenings? West Pass Pass There is nothing to the making of this contract except playing the trump suit sanely. West took his spade K and A, and, for lack of a better lead, offered a third round to the dummy's Q. South made a study of the situation, and decided to become brilliant. He reckoned that, with West having only a four-card spade suit, he must have quite a bit of honor strength, and hence was pretty likely to hold the heart A. In fact, it might be a singleton with East holding three headed by the J. So, to protect himself against this, he promptly led a small heart to the third trick and played the 10. When the J won this, he was fit to be tied. The heart A, of course, furnished the setting trick a bit later.

North gave South a very simple lesson. If he was going to play West for a singleton A and East for three headed by the J, he should have played the Q from dummy first. That would have given him protection against the aftuation that did exist and also egainst the one his hunch made him fear.

PRICE-FIXING IS LAID TO EYEGLASS TRADE

Groups and Persons Ruling 95% of Lens Business In Nation Are

Indicted

FLEECING OF PUBLIC SEEN Evidence Is Said to Show

$20 Spectacles Could Be Sold Profitably For $7.50

A general system of price-fixing hy which the cost of ere-glasses throughout the country has been kept unnecessarily high during the last decade was charged yesterday in four indictments handed up here by a Federal grand jury. The defendants include fourteen manufacturers five wholesalers, three trade associations and twenty-one

These defendants, it was said, make and distribute 95 percent of all the evergiass lenses sold in the United States, as well as most of the frames for them. Government attorneys who conducted the investigation that led to the indictments disclosed that they would be followed by the filing of two civil suits. The ultimate object is a lowering of the price to the public, it was said.

Heary Overcharging Alleged The indictments, charging viola-tion of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, are based on allegations of price-fixing of goods sold in interstate commerce. The degree to which the ultimate cost to the consumer may have been inflated did not concern the investigators, it was said. However, one estimate was that a pair of eveglasses selling for $20 might well bring a good profit if sold for $7.50.
